Last Chance To Take Out Exhibits Tomorrow.

OFFICERS GOING TO MURRAY

The aftermath of Paducah's successful Tri-State fair has proven even more strenuous for Secretary Rodney Davis than while the fair was in progress. A heavy expense was attached to the four days and it is believed the association will come out a little ahead, although this cannot be announced for some time yet. Mr. Davis is busy checking up the books and paying off accounts.

The last opportunity for merchants and exhibitors to remove their property from Floral Hall will be tomorrow morning. The hall has been kept open since the close of the fair Saturday for the accommodation of the exhibitors. Most of the exhibits and decorations have been taken away and tomorrow the hall will be open from 9:30 until 10:30 a. m. After this it will be locked and there will be no watchman.

The fair grounds present a deserted appearance. All tents and stands have been torn down and horsemen have gone, leaving the stables short of the big string of horses.

Thursday President Ben Wedle and Secretary Davis of the fair association, will go to Murray, as guests of the Murray Fair association at the annual fair and races. An invitation was extended to them several weeks ago. Many of the race horses here last week will be at Murray this week and some go to Golconda.

M. Michael & Brother, harness and saddle dealers, who got a blue ribbon for their display in Floral Hall will send their representative, Peter Beckersbach, to Golconda today to decorate for a display there.

W. B. Sullivan.

After a lingering illness of stomach trouble, W. B. Sullivan, 52 years old, of 911 South Eleventh street, died at Riverside hospital Saturday night. He was removed there for treatment Saturday afternoon. Mr. Sullivan was born and reared in Waynesboro, Tenn., and 20 years ago he came to Paducah, where he had since resided. For the past 17 years he had been airbrake inspector for the Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis railroad at the local yards. He was a member of the Paducah Lodge No. 127 of Masons and also a member of the Olive camp, Woodmen of the World lodge. The funeral was held at 10 o'clock this morning at the residence, 911 South Eleventh street, and burial was in Oak Grove cemetery. The funeral was under the direction of the Woodmen of the World lodge.

Joseph Walker.

Joseph Walker, 60 years old, a well known ship caulk employed at the marine ways, First and Washington streets, died at 1 o'clock Sunday afternoon after a short illness of jaundice. He was a good-hearted citizen and resided at 2126 Yelmer avenue, Mechanicsburg. Surviving him are his wife, Mrs. Mary F. Walker, one son and a brother. The funeral services will be held at the residence at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon and burial will be in Oak Grove cemetery.

MAYOR GAYNOR RETURNS TO HIS OFFICE TODAY

New York, Oct. 3.—Mayor William J. Gaynor, who was shot down on board the Kaiser Wilhelm De Grosse by James Gallagher on August 9, returned to his office in the city hall today. His active return to public life was marked by no ceremony.

Marriage Licenses.

September was an unusually dull month with Cupid, and during the entire month there was a total of only 32 marriage licenses issued. Of these 26 were to white couples. October has started off with a rush, and it seems like all the girls prefer to be October brides.

E. A. Strow, of Benton, was robbed of his fine gold watch Saturday afternoon at the west end fair grounds during the races. Several were victims of slick pickpockets.

Station Platform Scene of Tragedy—Wronged Husband Empties Revolver Into Prostrate Form.

Vincennes, Ind., Oct. 3.—Edward Tibson, a millionaire oil operator, was killed at the Union station here early today by Menlo Moore, owner of a string of theaters. Family troubles are said to be back of the shooting.

Tibson was shot five times in the back. Moore jumped on a train and went to Washington, Indiana, presumably to meet his wife, who is visiting her father Arnold J. Taggart, but he was arrested as he left the train there. The shooting is alleged to be the direct result of the attention paid Moore's wife by Tibson. Moore had watched Tibson purchase a ticket and followed him out on the platform, where the shooting took place. Tibson amassed a fortune in the Indiana oil fields.

M'MANUS HAD NO IDEA OF DANGER

HIS COMPANION ON FATAL NIGHT SAID HE WAS CHEERFUL.

Nearly four days have gone without a single development in the assassination of Frank McManus, who was shot down at 10 o'clock last Thursday night at the doorstep of his home at 811 South Sixth street. The police are still without a tangible lead, but are working day and night on all conceivable theories that might lead to the apprehension of the murderer, for whom the city of Paducah has offered a reward of $500. The police say nothing definite has been reached so far and will not discuss the case further than their efforts have met without result.

On the night of the assassination, McManus was not in any trouble as far as can be learned. With his intimate friends, George Steinbauer, bookkeeper at the Evansville Brewing agency, McManus started home at 9:30 o'clock from work. He walked home with Steinbauer, who had only a small amount of routine business to look after.

Lee Walston and W. C. Leach, who fought with pistol and poker September 26 at the resort of Florence Johnson, near Fifth and Norton streets, were held over to the grand jury this morning from police court and their bonds fixed at $300 each. Walston is alleged to have shot Leach in the hand, while Leach is said to have felled Walston with an iron poker.

Torrey Meetings At Auditorium Open With Crowd Of Nearly 3,000 People—Proof That There Is God

Inspiring Music Feature Of Services—A Scholarly Address By Evangelist—Bible Lectures in Mornings.

"In the beginning God." That was the text from which Dr. R. A. Torrey, the evangelist preached last night at the Auditorium rink, Tenth street and Broadway, before an audience that taxed the seating capacity, estimated at 3,000. Tonight more seats will be provided.

Doctor Torrey's enunciation is distinct, and his voice youthful and resonant, so that the people on the rear seats heard with ease every word he uttered. Deep scholarship, a wide range of scientific investigation, remarkable Biblical knowledge, a never failing vocabulary, precision of expression, and earnest conviction stamp Dr. Torrey as to the extent of attributing to it every phenomenon of nature; because it has not been scientifically established and proven. "We talk about the missing link," he said. "They are all missing." There is not a single link to prove the evolution of species and there could not be, because the progress of evolution from one species to another would necessarily be so gradual, with the tendency to reversion to type, that ages and ages would be occupied in the process.

Yet, assuming the hypothesis of evolution to be true and that the whole visible universe was evolved from one primordial protoplasm," in a way, that would be an even more wonderful proof of the creative genius of God, than the simple idea of his by a breath creating the world as it stands today; for the far-reaching intelligence that created that primordial protoplasm, equipped with the inherent quality of expanding and developing its cell into the multitudinous forms of life on this planet today, and the unknown wonders of the universe beyond our ken, stuns the intelligence of man to grasp it.

SEARCH OF RUINS OF LOS ANGELES TIMES BUILDING

Reveals Seven Bodies so Far
...Three Hundred Men Are Looking.

Coroner's Inquest Will be Held Tomorrow.

ONE ANARCHIST IS ARRESTED.

Los Angeles, Oct. 3.—Three hundred men digging in the wreck of the Times building have unearthed five bodies.

The police still guard the home of General Harrison Grey Otis. Three arrests have been made since the explosion Saturday morning. One is alleged to be an anarchist.

The total of the rewards now offered is $18,000.

The body of Wesley Reaves, secretary to General Manager Chandler, is the only one of the bodies recovered that was identified. The others are burned beyond recognition.

An inquest will be held Tuesday. Dynamite experts will attempt to solve the problem of the explosion. Mork Bentley and his pressman escaped through a hole in the wall and it is thought that many others made their escapes from windows.

General Otis issued a statement deplored the loss. He was overcome by the loss of life of "faithful and loyal workmen, who were slain by conspirators and assassins, for the infamous deed was in fact an act of assassination."

Fiscal Court.

In regular session the McCracken fiscal court will meet tomorrow morning at the court. The usual routine business will be before the magistrates. The regular election of a county commissioner will be held and Magistrates Householder and Walston are spoken of most favorably to succeed former Magistrate John Burnett.

However, if the law is construed by the magistrates, as it is by County Judge Alben W. Barkley, the salary of the office will be reduced considerably. At present the salary is $200 a year with practically no duties to perform, excepting making the yearly settlement with the sheriff. Judge Barkley proposes to have a magistrate appointed to make the settlement and reimburse him for his services, but not to continue to pay a regular salary.

YORK OPENS RIFT IN CLOUD

RESULT OF REPUBLICAN STATE CONVENTION GOOD.

Conservatively Progressive Tone of Platform and Excellence of Candidates.

WILL RESTORE CONFIDENCE.

New York, Oct. 3.—A significant indication of improvement in underlying conditions is contained in the better distribution that large banking interests have recently been able to make of bonds. Within the last fortnight some $50,000,000 in new securities have been successfully placed, including the $7,500,000 Union Pacific bonds sold this week in London. After a prolonged season of depression it is in the bond department of the market that first signs of improvement usually appear; and there is nothing in sight to suggest that the bond situation will at this time prove a faulty barometer of approaching financial weather.

The Republican convention at Saratoga this week may be regarded as marking the culmination of the spectacular bitterness that has been so actively shown among the leaders of the dominant political party. Ex-President Roosevelt's success places upon him a tremendous responsibility which he undoubtedly fully recognizes. It is most natural to expect that from now on he will exhibit the pronounced traits that have made him so conspicuously successful as a political leader. In other words, Mr. Roosevelt having taken the active leadership in his own state may now be depended upon to work with his accustomed energy and skill for the success of the ticket that he himself has been so largely responsible for naming; and it is quite reasonable to expect that he will use to accomplish this end all the wiles of the trained politician, not the least important or effective of which are co-operation and cordiality with fellow-workers. Colonel Roosevelt is too experienced and too astute a politician to permit personal rancors to continue the dominating features during the remainder of the campaign, which from now on should assume a constantly decreasing influence as a factor in the general financial situation.

The frank, unstinted endorsement of President Taft and his administration by the New York State Republican convention is another feature of significance in the general financial situation. The president has been conducting the duties of his great office in a calm and judicial manner, and has not been attempting by his acts to advance his own political ambitions. His policy in this respect cannot fail to secure the endorsement of our broad-minded American people; and his assurances that associated capital is to have fair play means much to the great army of American citizens who are the chief stockholders in our railroads, in our great industrial corporations, our public utilities and other forms of investment. The president is at present giving most careful consideration to the question of filling the two vacancies in the supreme court. His recent admirable selection of Governor Hughes of New York may be accepted as an indication of the type of men he will select to occupy the responsible positions under consideration. No president ever had better opportunity to serve the best interests of the people than has President Taft in his selection of justice for the supreme court bench. Agitation against combinations of capital and of industry, not to mention the great trans-

Clergyman's Son Cured of Tuberculosis

To neglect a cold, bronchitis, lung trouble or Consumption is dangerous. We all know how prone people are to Consumption. It is a flattering disease, and the sufferer is filled with bright hopes of improvement. Call consumption by its own name—Tuberculosis—take Eckman's Alternative, because it is effective in Tuberculosis. No one need doubt about it—there is plenty of evidence from live witnesses. Helena, N. Y.

Gentlemen: "Prior to Feb., 1908, I was located in Rochester, N. Y., suffering with 'La Grippe' which I diagnosed into 'Consumption.' My physician gave me one month to live. I was having terrible night sweats and mid-day chills, and losing flesh rapidly, having lost 40 pounds to date. I sought and raised continually and became so weak that walking a few feet exhausted me. On my return home, my regular physician, Dr. E. H. C. Anglin, heard of Eckman's Alternative and induced me to take it. The night sweats and chills disappeared, my condition was greatly improved and diminished and in a few days I developed an appetite, the first in months. I am now in perfect health, back to 155 lbs. I feel certain that I owe my life to Eckman's Alternative."

(Signed) REV. J. C. COVLES.

Gentlemen: Please accept my thanks for your appreciation of what you have done for my son. It changed his despair into hope within two weeks after he began taking it, and without any doubt it is the only thing saved his life. I wish to add my endorsement to every word of his testimonial.

Yours very truly, portation lines of the country, has become so popular that it is becoming increasingly difficult to obtain men with sufficient self reliance, sufficient breadth of mind and sufficient courage to stand out for absolute justice in the face of popular clamor. Such a man we know Governor Hughes to be; and we know also that other present members of the supreme court bench are similarly endowed. We have reason to believe that the new selections to be made by the president will prove wholly satisfactory. The net result of this situation can hardly be overestimated. The Standard Oil and the American Tobacco cases under such conditions lose their force as features of alarm, and we may feel thoroughly assured that whatever decisions are reached will be based on the constitutional rights of property. We can ask or desire nothing more. If these organizations in their form contravene the laws, ample opportunity will be given them to conform to the laws. There will be no attempt at confederation, and it is quite fair to assume that under the new conditions that are now in sight the decisions of the supreme court affecting industrial combinations are not the threatening influences that they were a few months ago.

With the political situation to that extent cleared, it is difficult to view the fundamental features of the market for stock exchange securities in other than a favorable and encouraging light. Where the political factor entirely and finally removed other conditions are present that would command gradual if not spectacular improvement. The corn crop for example is now practically 90 per cent safe and will this year undoubtedly cross the three billion bushel mark for the first time in the history of our great country. Other products of our farms while in no single instance do they promise to be new record markers, nevertheless in the aggregate will not fall far short of making 1910 the banner year in American agricultural history. This is a fundamental situation that in the long run must make itself felt—a situation that will probably be reflected by the financial market well in advance of either trade or industrial activities. It is hardly possible to exaggerate the importance of such a factor in the stock market.

Another fundamentally favorable influence is the distinct change for the better that has taken place in money conditions during the last few weeks. The Bank of England, it is true, advanced its official minimum discount rate to 4 per cent on Thursday, following a similar advance by the German bank on Monday. In this the governors of the English bank merely made their official figure correspond with the actual market. Money in England is not abnormally high, and the figures that funds now command there may be regarded a sign of strength in the general fiscal situation rather than an indication suggesting unfavorable developments. Great Britain today is passing through a period of almost unprecedented trade activity and prosperity. It is natural therefore that the banking business should join heartily in the current prosperity. In fact, our own banking institutions could well stand a trifle more of this same kind of prosperity without it constituting an unfavorable influence on the general business situation. Easy money, per se, is not an unfavorable stock market influence. It usually accompanies depression in both trade and industry. The fears that were so general early in the summer of a shortage of funds for the autumn have proven unfounded and present prospects suggest that the stock market will find ample banking accommodation available for any movement of a speculative character that is likely to occur during the closing weeks of the year. Preparations for the quarterly dividend and interest disbursements which began today were responsible for rather firmer money rates late in the week. This is a matter that will correct itself.

Purchases of standard investment securities on all important breaks are not likely to prove unprofitable from now on.

WEEK'S CALENDAR.
KENTUCKY—Tuesday night, Clara Lipman in "The Marriage of a Star."

KENTUCKY—Wednesday night, Margaret Anglin in "The Awakening of Helena Richie."

KENTUCKY—Last half week—Morris Circuit Vanderville. STAR—Family Vanderville.

Clara Lipman.

With the appearance here tomorrow night of Miss Clara Lipman the long looked for regular theatrical season will open. She will appear at the Kentucky in her latest and most successful play, "The Marriage of a Star." It is a free adaptation from Alexandre Bisson, author of "Madame V." and George Thurner's famous French comedy "La Marque d'une Etoile."

Paducah is the fourth city in the country to see this play as it is direct from Chicago where it closed Saturday night. The only other stand was in New York where it was the reigning success. The advance sale has been most encouraging and a representative Paducah audience is looked for. Miss Lipman has a score of Paducah friends who are personal friends of her husband, Louis Mann. She will be especially pleasing to the ladies, for in this play she has a great chance to wear some wonderful gowns.

In the role of the actress-mother Miss Lipman is called upon to impersonate a volatile, gifted, idolized, petted and spoiled French actress. It is the best role she has ever assumed and is a most delightful and charming one which she makes the most of.

The story of "The Marriage of a Star," in which Miss Lipman will be seen, relates the adventures of "Simone," an actress who is the rage of Paris. In her youth "Simone" married Beason Lore, a Bostonian. Shortly after the birth of their daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Lore decided to separate and the wife returned to the Paris stage. Here she again became the sensation.

But the lure of Boston struggles strong against the lure of the Parisian stage and as the years pass the greater triumphs come. "Simone" begins to crave the sight of Majorie, her daughter. She decides on an American tour which in her heart begins and ends in Boston. When she arrives there she finds her daughter about to be married. Horrors! "Simone," the idol of Paris, to become a mother-in-law! Never!

Struggling vainly against her age "Simone" becomes drawn into flirtation with her daughter's fiance. She fails to perceive what is taking place in the young man's heart until he declares his passion. Then and then only is "Simone" brought to the realization of her true self. The mother-love triumph and the youth is forced back to sanity and the daughter.

In Miss Lipman's company there will be found several well-known actors and actresses among which may be mentioned Paul Scardon, as the director of the theater. Mr. Scardon has been prominently associated with Nance O'Neill, Kyrie Bellew, Creston Clarke, E. H. Sothern and last season with Lawrence Irving, and with Mrs. Fiske, Louis Kimball, who was "Monty" in "Brewster's Millions." Lina Lorraine, another prominent member of the support, was recently with Viola Allen, Mary Manning, "Diplomacy." Evangelyn Blaisdale, a member of the New York Theater company, is also in the cast.

For thirty years," writes a Washington housewife, "I have been a steady coffee drinker. I wanted it at every meal.

"But I would have sick headache most of the day, and often throw up my food. I really suffered awfully from coffee yet thought I never could stop it.

"Then I heard how good Postum was for such cases, and began to use it. At first I did not care for Postum; I felt sleepy and had headache. I soon found that this was because of the bold coffee had on me, for in about three days after I quit coffee and began to use Postum the headache left me, had no more nervousness and palpitation. In about a week I felt like a new woman.

"I have used Postum three years and when it is made according to directions (boiled 15 minutes) it is as pleasant as coffee and don't hurt anyone. I ought to know for I was bad off. Now I am well."

Margaret Anglin.

Margaret Anglin's engagement is Wednesday night, when she will make her first appearance here.

"The awakening of Helena Richie," her new play, has recently concluded a successful run of many months in New York and comes here after successful seasons in Chicago and Boston. The play, as has already been announced, is a dramatic version of Margaret Deland's novel of the same name, and has been made for the stage by Charlotte Thompson, a successful young Californian playwright. Reports from New York and elsewhere are agreed in a universal opinion of the critical faculty that as Helen Richie, Miss Anglin has found a role eminently suited to her splendid dramatic qualities, and that it is her finest achievement, not exceeding her well remembered and remarkable acting in "Zira," "Mrs. Dane's Defense," and "The Great Divide." The psychological subtleties of Mrs. Deland's heroine are surely worthy of the actress' great ability, and it is a matter for congratulation that Miss Anglin finds in Helena a better opportunity for her comedy powers than she enjoyed in the above mentioned productions. The story of the play is identical with the salient points in the novel, the dominating situation of which is in Helena's world, the old clergyman of Mrs. Deland's creation. The action takes place in a village in western Pennsylvania and the gossips thereof play a prominent part in the undoing of the heroine's peace and happiness. Miss Thompson is credited with having skillfully preserved the authoress' intentions and those who are familiar with the book should have little cause to regret the turning of it into stage play.

The play is in four acts and there are two scenes, one of which is in Helena's parlor and the other is in her old-world garden. Miss Anglin personally cast and directed the production, aided by Mrs. Deland, who is now for the first time having one of her stories put on the stage. Great pains would seem to have been exercised in securing the proper types of actors and Miss Anglin's efforts in that direction have met with cordial approval. The supporting company includes Martin Sabine, John R. Crawford, Walter Howe, Halbert Brown, Eugene Shakespeare, Raymond Hackett, Gertrude Swiggett and Sally Williams.

The New Theater.

Paducah is to have the swellest picture show in Kentucky when the Desberger Bros. open up their new motion picture house next Wednesday, October 5. They have decided to name the new place the "Gem," and the exterior and interior decorations certainly entitle it to the name. It is the best equipped house of its kind anywhere. The interior decorations are a harmonious blending of green, red and gold, even to the chairs, which are to five-play green birch, with gold color standards. Paducah picture theater-goers will certainly have a beautiful place in which to enjoy the silent dramas and comedies. The price of admission will be 5 cents, with a change of program every day.

At the Star.

The feature at the Star for the first three days of the next week will be the one Marie Clark, "The Girl With the Red Hair," and known the world over as Chicago's favorite. She is sure to catch on at the Star and the patrons can expect something good.

Frank Jones does an eccentric black face song and dance turn, including an acrobatic peg-leg buck dance, which is now and funny.

The Hawes Sisters, in their sister act, of course, will give us some new songs and pretty dancing.

Frank Long has a new song entitled "I Took My Wife to the Circus."

Two reels of motion pictures will also be given. Admission, 10 cents; children, 5 cents.

DEFEATS METROPOLIS HIGH BY BIG SCORE.

First Time New Rules Were Applied In Paducah Was on Last Saturday.

By a most decisive score the Paducah High school football eleven won the second game from the Metropolis High school team Saturday afternoon at League park. The final was 42 to 0, and the local lads high in their hopes for a perfect record this season. The local football machine made gains whenever necessary, and played entirely too swift a game for the visitors. The ends were swift, and time after time recovered punts and kicks.

Browning carried the ball over for four touchdowns. Mitchell trotted over the goal line twice. Elliott scored a touchdown and Hughes made a successful kick. Hughes and Browning each kicked goal. The Paducah lads are in high spirits over their strong opponents. Metropolis tried hard to stop the high score, but the efforts were unavailing. The weather made it more appropriate for a game of baseball instead of football.

The teams lined up: Paducah—Browning, le; Elliott, lt; King, lg; J. Harth, c; Jones, rg; I. Browning, rt; Mitchell, re; P. Harth, qb; W. Browning, lh; captain; Yarbrough, ch; and Hughes, tb.

Daily Thought.

So I like life and I like righteousness; if I cannot keep the two together, I will let life go and choose righteousness.—Menecius.

Every judgment is an opportunity; every opportunity is a judgment.

Eliminating from consideration, those insect-like individuals, who are willing to risk their lives to see which can go the fastest around a circle, and the chicken-brained spectators, who step into the track to see which is going the fastest, it seems to us that the Vanderbilt cup casualties can be reduced by hanging or imprisoning for life one or two of the culprits, who race through towns and cities on their way to the course.

THE LAW'S JEOPARDY.

Sometimes it takes a great shock to arouse us to a sense of our danger. Pain is man's best friend; it warns him that he is violating nature's laws. When our theories are wrong a premature result, like an aching in the solar plexus, frequently calls for reform. The explosion in the Los Angeles Times building meant something; but it neither meant that the theory of men organizing for their own advancement and welfare of their craft and for the purpose of contracting in a body with their employers is wrong; nor that the disordered brain which conceived and executed the hideous plot of murder and arson was register'd a desperate protest against social evils. It means that efforts to arouse class hatred, denunciations of everybody in an influential position as a tyrant and a wrong doer; of the courts as perverted from justice; of society as degenerate; of the government as tyrannical; and the rights of property as sham, has ripened some early fruit.

The pity of it is that the stigma will rest, where we believe it does not belong, on the striking unions; because the paper was fighting the unions, and the home of the owner and of the head of the association of employers, which strives for the open shop, also, were dynamited. The unions should not only disavow any connection; but should add a substantial sum to the reward for the information, leading to the conviction of the culprits; as earnest of their desire to see the law upheld.

The safety of the workingman rests in the law. The safety of every poor man and man of moderate means rests in law enforcement. Take away the law and the rich and powerful will rule with an iron hand. Give us a state which owns all the property, employs all citizens and regulates their home and social life, and the man, who with Louis XIV, can say, "THE STATE!—IT IS I!" will be our master.

Do not let us deceive ourselves; always the man with brains, who has ambition commensurate with his brains, and energy and singleness of purpose commensurate with his ambition, will dominate his fellows as far as his ambition directs and opportunity permits. In a socialistic state with the concentration of every factor that enters into the life of the citizen in one central repository, it would be possible for a single individual to dominate it all and perpetuate his power. In a democracy, in which the will of the majority is promptly registered through the machinery of government, the moment the ambitions of one dominating intellect run counter to the rights and interests of his fellow citizens, that instant his brain and desires and purposes will be opposed by the combined brains and purposes and desires of the whole nation directed to a common end. It offers the most perfect system of automatic checks and balances possible, and the segregation of industrial and social relations from the government prevents a coup, by which an individual could seize the power over his fellow men.

The history of the rise of the people has been the history of the recognition of the rights of property. When the state owned the land and all the wealth belonged to it, the common people were slaves or serfs. With the dawn of the feudal days the crown leased the lands to the barons by feudal tenure and the barons leased the lands to the vassals under them. That was a step upward, and as the rights of the individual to the exclusive enjoyment of the fruits of his own labor became better recognized and more securely protected, individual enterprise, which has nowhere else been exemplified in so striking a degree as in this country, where individual rights are most widely recognized, has hastened the fulfillment of modern civilization.

The great moral awakening, the extension of the brotherhood of man idea, the anti-war spirit, the recognition of the rights of the laboring man to work under hygienic and safe conditions, to contract for his labor, to remuneration for loss of earning capacity, to arbitration in wage disputes—all these are developments of our civilization, the consequences of all the steps that have gone before; and not, as our socialist comrades would have us believe, a growing realization that all that went before was wrong.

Compare the lot of the lowliest today with that of the most exalted of ancient times, and see how much they excel in comfort, conveniences, health and good cheer. All that has followed the recognition of the rights of property in the individual.

Compare the lot of the lowliest today with that of the most exalted of ancient times, and see how much they excel in comfort, conveniences, health and good cheer. All that has followed the recognition of the rights of property in the individual. Compare conditions of the manual toilers in this country with those of manual toilers in Europe and see now how far superior are the conditions under which they live; their wages, their food, their clothing, their social life, their educational advantages; their hopes and intelligence—and here the recognition of property rights has reached far beyond the European idea.

This is a good country, this is a good age, and God forbid, that the idea of greater governmental control over the individual should find a foothold here; for it is reactionary, reaching back to the dark ages and the bondage of labor.

What we ask and all we ask, as freemen, glorying in our strength of manhood and pride of achievement, neither afraid of ourselves nor of our fellowmen, is not more government control of us; but more control of the government by us.

THE FAIR CROWDS.

Observations at the recent county fair convinces us that there is no other institution, which brings all the people together on a common basis so well as the county fair. Charming gowned society ladies hung over the pig pens and listened rapturously, while the owner in home spun dilated on the good points of sow or boar, their ancestry and progeny, the age, weight and fat-producing qualities of the breed. People, whose only knowledge of poultry consists in keeping abreast the advance in price of spring flocks and a wary caution in having their hot weather eggs served straight up, so as to expose any inclination of the yolk to merge its identity in the white; inspected dominicks, white Plymouth rocks, Monarkas, leghorns and the rest with clever simulation of the critical eye. Corn and tobacco was measured with a solemnity that spoke volumes for their interest, while it concealed their ignorance. The same serious interest, let it be added, was betrayed by the crowds in listening to the discussions of the relative merits of typewriters, sewing machines, paints and food products. Though thousands of pamphlets were given away, the ground was not strewn with them, and most of them found their way into the pockets of fair visitors and were carried home.

Much has been written about the psychology of the crowd; but we would like a work specialized on the psychology of a fair crowd. They enjoyed themselves, but in a manner different from the abandon of circus day frivolity. Everybody at the fair was a specialist in everything on exhibition. Some of them even dared to predict how a race would result.

STATE PRESS.

Mrs. Mary Hurt, affectionately known to a large number of people as "Grandma," has returned from a visit to her son, R. N. Hurt, in McCracken county. Though she is probably the oldest person in Calloway county, it was her first ride on a railroad train.—Calloway Gazette.

WOMEN'S PRIZES AT McCRAKEN FAIR

Premium winners for the best exhibits of the ladies' displays in floral hall at the fair last week were nearly all Paducah women, although there were several out-of-town winners. There were over 1,000 entries in the fancy work, jelly, etc., exhibits and after tedious work the association has compiled a list of the winners. PRESIDENT TAFT TELLS ACHIEVEMENTS

OF HIS PARTY DURING HIS TERM

Speech Before League Of Republican Clubs Outlines Policies And Promises.

New York, Oct. 3.—National prosperity—the tangible variety that springs directly from the soil and is measured, not in stocks and bonds, but in good American crops—is predicted by President Taft for the coming year.

In an optimistic address at the banquet of the National League of Republican clubs the nation's executive told the party leaders that all records for harvests and a well distributed prosperity would be broken in the twelve months to come. And then he produced figures, evidently gathered by his agricultural department, to back up his prediction.

Prediction of Prosperity.

Here are President Taft's views on prosperity and his definition of the progressive Republicans:

It gives me the greatest satisfaction to say that in spite of all the rumors of possible business stagnation, our basic prosperity is assured for the coming year in that the great volume of the crops now being harvested in value will exceed the products of our fields at any period in the past. Our corn will equal approximately three million dollars, and the significance of this fact in its bearing on the business of next year can hardly be overstated.

A progressive Republican is one who recognizes existing and concrete evils and who is in favor of definite steps to eradicate them.

Amplifies His Prophecy.

The president amplified his prophecy of prosperity with these words:

"The millionaire, the great manufacturer and the capitalist seem to derive more benefit, measured in dollars and cents, from prosperity than do the individual workman, farmer, small merchant, clerk and professional man. But in actual human comfort and happiness prosperity is vastly more important to the wage-earner than to the wealthy."

"Hence it is a legitimate office of those charged with governmental responsibility to do what they can to prevent the spreading of fears which will drive capital to its hoarding place and prevent the investments necessary to carry on the widely expanded business of this country from which our people derive their livelihood. Business men now view with favor rather than with alarm a strict enforcement of law."

Remedial Laws Passed.

Then the president got down to the remedial bits of legislation passed by the Republicans during the present administration. He said:

"It is truly a Republican distinction that our party has been able to place on the statute books far-reaching remedial legislation touching the very vitals of our social and economic structure without involving the country in financial disaster. A party of true progress is not a party of radicalism. It is not a party of ultra-conservatism. A progressive Republican is one who recognizes existing and concrete evils who is in favor of practical and definite steps to eradicate them.

"Now, what are the specific evils that have roused our people? I believe that they have been growing in this country for years and years, and they can be briefly stated thus:

Names Two Specific Evils.

"1. The corrupt control of legislative and governmental agencies for the establishment, maintenance and enjoyment of unjust privileges by individuals or corporate wealth. To make this control effective there have been organized and maintained corrupt machines within both parties which break the current of communication and responsive action between the people and those who are elected to serve and represent them.

"2. Combinations of capital in industrial business, generally brought together for the ostensible and commendable purpose of reducing the costs of production and distribution, have too often had the real purpose of suppressing competition, controlling prices and maintaining monopoly."

"A new court of commerce was provided in order that shippers and railroads might secure prompt decisions.

"Railway employees were protected by a new safety appliance law.

me so, history tells me so, and my personal experiences prove it.

He closed with an appeal for converts.

Mr. McEwan sang "Christ Returneth" in an exquisite tenor voice, one of the purest and sweetest ever heard in Paducah. The choir, composed of nearly 300 voices, sang with precision and volume the beautiful and inspiring hymns from the book Dr. Torrey edited.

William McEwan.

It was nearly 40 years ago that William McEwan, then a little lad of Glasgow, Scotland, began to gain local fame as having the "bonniest voice in Glasgow." In school his childish treble rang clear and sweet above his companions; in church the pew holders used to say it rang "like an angel's."

His father was made to see that in the boy's voice lay a fortune. He drew from his savings enough to place him for training with Robert Dawson, one of Scotland's finest music masters. The lad's first success came when he was admitted a member of the choral union.

From the choral union he went to the concert hall platform. From the concert hall platform he went to the stage, singing light opera. His voice made the music critics sit up from one end of England to the other. His future was assured. Then he came to America, where he sang in nearly every large city, always to enthusiastic audiences. He was contented with his work and never thought of the future of holding out anything different from him. Then one day he sailed back to Glasgow to visit the scenes of his boyhood.

The great change in his life took place six weeks after his return. While walking down one of Glasgow's busy streets his attention was drawn to an open air meeting in the course of which there was a song service that held his interest. At the close of the meeting, all who took part in it were invited to go to a gospel meeting to be held in Bethany Hall under the leadership of a little band of theological students from the Bible Training Institute. His curiosity aroused, Mr. McEwan went. A young theological student spoke. The opera singer and a man of the world sat and listened. He says now, as he sat listening to the earnest young minister elect, the Holy Spirit convinced him of sin and showed him his need of a Savior. From that day on his determination grew to abandon his profession and devote his voice—"God's phonograph," to religious services. This is a spacious and centrally located and will be an ideal place.

The first exhibit will be on Friday, October 7, instead of Thursday, as was originally planned. The picture

The Ring and the Man

WITH SOME INCIDENTAL RELATION TO THE WOMAN

By Cyrus Townsend Brady

Illustrations by Dearborn Melville

Copyright 1898 by Modell, Ward & Co.

"What more have you?"
"Well, I've seen the woman. She's alive yet."

"Naturally she must have been or they couldn't have got this story from her," was the answer.

"Course. Well, the end of the story's this: Them people plunged south in that blizzard. We looked for 'em in the spring; but never expected to find their remains, 'cause it was more'n human flesh could stand, such a storm as that, and we naturally supposed they'd both died and got it up by the wolves when they was partly thawed out. But the other night I was takin' a trip through the tenderloin—for observation purposes," said Colonel Bill as the ghost of a smile flickered on the face of the night editor—"and I seen this woman and had an interview with her. She's plum scared to death. The chief of police who got this stuff from her's frightened her out of her boots. But I, bein' an old friend of hers, managed to calm her down, and I got her to give me her story. She's always been sorry that she served Fordyce the way she done.

"I don't know how it is, but somehow I got at the good side of her. You see these women are going straight to hell perhaps—although I ain't got no inside information as to that—but however low they git and however bad they are, there's always a soft spot in 'em somewhere. They're women still. And I guess I must've touched the soft spot in her somehow or other; for she told me the truth. At any rate she confessed the whole thing to me, and she said furthermore that when them two was goin' south in the storm, her horse fell down and died, and that Fordyce got off his horse and she mounted it, and he walked himself hangin' to the saddle strap, and she said that seemin' that the remainin' bronco was givin' out too, she shoved Fordyce down and galloped away and left him. And I got her signature to paper confessin' it."

Again Colonel Bill had recourse to the tin box.

"No, no," was the answer.

"But go on, please, Colonel Hamilton," said the editor; "and will you be as explicit as possible. We are holding up the paper in the hope that you may be able to throw some light on this matter, and time is of the greatest importance."

"I see," was the reply. "Well, then, that's written in that paper's true enough; but he ain't told all the truth."

"Would you mind telling us what has been suppressed or left out?"

"The man's wife was run away with as Gormly, or Fordyce as I know him, says on that night he indicates that the woman's husband was left dyin' on the cabin floor."

"Yes, sir," answered the reporter. "Not yet, but mighty nigh gone."

Colonel Bill drew from his pocket a key and unlocked the tin box. From a worn envelope he drew forth a worn piece of paper, on which was written in pencil that was very much faded, but still sufficiently legible, a brief message. Colonel Bill unfolded the paper, yellow with age, and handed it to the editor, who seized it, turned to the light, and read:

"I killed him, but it was in self defense—Fordyce."

"That's the first bit of evidence," he said.

The editor nodded. "That settles it."

"No, it don't," was the reply. "For when we got there, as I said, he wasn't dead, and we managed to revive him with a good drink of liquor, which Pete Breedon—that was his name—always would respond to," he interpolated. "And he managed to say a few words."

"What were they?"

"He said that his wife shot him and run off with Fordyce."

"Anything more?"

"Then he died."

"I see," said the editor. "Gormly took the blame upon himself to shield the woman."

"It will be Colonel Hamilton's unsupported statement against this written confession, though," interposed the night editor.

"Well, as it happens," was the reply, "the statement ain't unsupported."

"What more?" asked the editor.

"This."

Colonel Bill from the same tin box fished out another object wrapped in a piece of paper. He unrolled the paper and exhibited a flattened leaden bullet.

"This come from a thirty-two caliber revolver. Doc Johnson, who was the only medical shark we had in them days, he performed an autopsy, or somethin' like that, on the body of Breedon, and he got this from it. No man in the territory ever carried a thirty-two. Forty-five's the usual weapon for a gent out there, and that come from the woman's gun. I'd often seen her use it, and she could shoot most as straight as a man could, that woman."

"Good!" exclaimed the editor.

"That ain't all," said Colonel Bill triumphantly. "I got here a signed paper witnessed before Justice of the Peace Jennings, the only one we had, and signed by me and several other men, which swears they heard Breedon say his wife killed him and that they seen this thirty-two bullet took out of his breast, the autopsy been public like the fun'ral. And it's made out in due form."

"It's quite satisfactory," said the editor, glancing at it and passing it over to Shaw.

"So you see we fellers kind of thought Fordyce done a man's part in takin' the blame on himself, and I always kept these things. I thought they might turn up handy sometime."

"You did well."

"And that ain't all either," said Col. Bill Hamilton.

Miss Van Debaden, second; Outlander, third; Lord Wells, also ran, Time,

:50 3/4.

Two track records were broken Saturday afternoon, the last day of the Tri-State fair at the West End race track. Dutch, a trotter owned by William Rush and entered in the free-for-all trot, lowered the Paducah track record 3/4 of a second in the first heat. He was distanced in the second heat by repeated running. The former track record was 2:16 1/4, which mark was made in 1907. Dutch stepped off the mile in 2:15 1/4 minutes.

The second record to be broken was the unheralded and almost unparalleled parachute drop of Prof. Wes Vaughan, who made his ascension in a hot air balloon previous to the races. Vaughan rose to a dizzy height and cut loose. He came gracefully down, settling in the center of the race track just off the west end of the grandstand. The balloon fell in the track field just 20 feet west from the generator. This was a very unusual occurrence and the days previous Vaughan had alighted far from the fair grounds.

In the free-for-all trot Dutch proved an easy winner in the first heat and established a new record. The second heat he went up and was out of the race. The second, third and fourth heats were taken by Wilford G., and Dignis Frazier got second money. The heats:

Dutch (Rush) 1 0 0 0

Dignis Frazier (Frazier) 2 3 2

Wilford G. (Hickot) 2 1 1 1

Ed Allen (Hoek) 3 3 2 3

Time: 2:15 1/2; 2:19 1/2; 2:20 1/4; 2:24 3/4.

Carrie Short, owned by C. L. Van Meter and entered in the 1/2 mile untrained pace proved to be a tame horse and won easily. Mr. Van Meter declined to enter the horse for the purse and only for further education. Little Joe, owned by H. S. Robey, took first money, and Dandy Dan, owned by W. M. James, took second. Morning Star, owned by A. T. Edwards, got third money. Other entries were Alento, Fred and Buffalo Bill. The time for the two heats was 1:13 and 1:20.

The running events were good. Waddle Lee, owned by Tobe Scott, captured the 1/2 mile dash. Ikey Cohen, owned by Wes Flower, took the second heat and won the 1/2 mile dash. Blister took the 1/2 mile dash in the time of 1:04.

After the races Starter W. L. Talbot was presented a handsome box of flowers by the Paducah Fair association in appreciation of his faithful services. Mr. Talbot accompanied by Mr. Adolph Well, a director of the association, left last night for Jackson, Tenn., to attend the races and fair. Mr. Talbot will officiate as starter and presiding judge.

ROSH HASHANAH
JEWISH NEW YEAR

MEANING AND PURPOSE OF THE FESTIVAL

This Evening Marks Beginning of the Celebrations—Its History.

SERVICES AT TEMPLE ISRAEL

On the evening of October 3 and the day of the 4th the Jewish people will observe the Rosh Hashanah, or New Year's Day of the year 5671.

The meaning and purpose of this festival is not set forth explicitly in the Bible; we are left to infer them from the Scriptural titles of the day. "The Memorial of Blowing Trumpets" (Lev. xxii, 24) and the Day of Blowing the Trumpet (Numbers xxix, 1) as well as from the fact that the Jewish New Year is the seventh new moon of the Hebrew calendar. In the Biblical age every new moon was regarded as a solemn occasion, and the seventh, the sacred number, was especially so.

It became the day of the blowing of the trumpet—par excellence—reminding the Israelite that a new period of time begins; and that no occasion could be more appropriate for the endeavor after a new life for amendment and reconciliation with God.

It was the day of memorial, when Israel felt himself held by God in merciful remembrance. But if Israel would have God mindful of him, he must be mindful of his responsibilities, to Him and to man's higher nature. The symbolic act of sounding the Shophar; or ram's horn, which is performed in the synagogues in obedience to the scriptural precept is intended to bring home to the Israelite this aspect of the day's meaning.

It is a solemn occasion, though not a mournful one. It is a day of chastened memories, a day of reflecting on man's frailty of character. But beneath this sombre sense of weakness, both physical and moral, there lies in the worshiper's heart the serene certitude of God's justice and mercy.

The communion service at the Kentucky Avenue Presbyterian church yesterday morning was attended by a large congregation. The pastor, the Rev. E. B. Landis was assisted in the service by the Rev. L. N. Williams, of Neoga, Ill. There were no evening services.
